Priority will be given to seek-ing long-term legislation that would increase from 17,400 to about 40,000 the number of refusees admitted on a yearly world-wide basis. But provisions would be retained for permitting additional refugees in case of new emergencies. No legislation is expected before next year.

•Until there is new legislation, the current law's emergency parole authority would be used to admit, without limit, all Victnamese boat refugees unable to find bomes elsewhere. Currently there are about 5,600 such refugees stranded throughout Asia, mostly in Malaysia and about 1,500 more Vietnamese are fleeing months in small boats. The United States expects to have to take about two-thirds of the current and future "boat people." The "parole authority" also would be used in the interim peried to admit without limit those Indochinese refugees wbo escaped by land into Thailand and who have special family or political ties to the United States. In 1975 the Nigerian govern-ment gave the U.S. Information Service two weeks to vacate its premises in Lagos. When the ageocy refused to hudge, troops moved in and occupied the building. During a six-month period that year, Nigeria refused on three occasions to receive Mr. Kissinger.

Relations here all but ruptured when Washington supported a faction backed by South Africa in the Angola civil war. The U.S. Embassy and the ambassador's residence were attacked in January, 1976. The next month the assassination of head of state Murtala Mohammed was blamed on the C.I.A., leading to more violent demonstrations.

Although many black African governments have paid no more than lip service to ending white minority rule in South Africa, Nigeria has been consistent, fervent and active in its opposition to apartheid. "Serious Commentary"

In addition, the State Department Wednesday called the Soviet analysis and critique of U.S. policy a "serious, thoughtful commeotary" that deserved senous study.

The proposal for Mr. Vance and Mr. Gromyko to meet, administratoo sources said, was made before the recent Kremlin neview of U.S.-Soviet policy that produced the Prayda article.

Mr. Vance discussed the idea of a Gromyko meeting with Soviet Amhassador Anatoli Dobrynin before Mr. Dobrynin left Washington for Moscow on March 17, reportedly "loaded down" with esition papers on U.S. policy. There has been some Soviet probing at lower levels about the possibility that Mr. Brezhnev might lead the Soviet delegation to New York, opening the way

FRONTIER IN SANTA CRUZ, BOLIVIA

> $18 per acre Only $295 Down

160 Acre Homestead For Only $2950

• Rich Fertile Wooded Land • Temperate Climate . Sufficient Water . Access to Supplies and Markets . Abundant Game

Once there was a great American frontier in the West. Cheap once there was a great American tronter in the West. Cheap fertile land and not many people to work it, opened up wonderful opportunities for generations of Americans, and immigrants too. Many prospered, many grew wealthy profiting from the development of the land and the nations expansion.

THOSE DAYS ARE SADLY GONE EXCEPT — YES EXCEPT FOR ONE PLACE — THE VAST TEMPERATE ZONE OF VIRGIN LAND IN THE STATE OF SANTA CRUZ, BOLIVIA.

AREA TEEMS WITH ACTIVITY AND NEW WEALTH

The Bolivian frontier is bustling with activity: vasl new farming The Bolivian trontier is bustling with activity: vast new tarming areas ere being opened up for cotion, soya beans, and compasture lands in the north are being developed as cattle ranches; new oil and gas discoveries are being made; mineral exploration is going forward; and plans are underway for a steel mill complex using natural gas for energy with estimated reserves of 40 billion tons of iron and manganese.

A report by the Bolivian — Utah State/USAID Study Team in 1972 concluded... "THE EASTERN PLAINS OF BOLIVIA SHOULD BE CONSIDERED AS ONE OF THE WORLD'S OUTSTANDING POTENTIALS FOR AGRICULTURE DEVELOPMENT." This potential can be your "Ground Floor" opportunity.

All of these activities are centered around the City of Santa Cruz

All of these activities are centered around the City of Santa Cruz de la Sierra, the booming capital of the State of Santa Cruz and Bolivia's second largest city. Santa Cruz de la Sierra was founded over 400 years ago, but it was connected to the outside world by little mora than an ox can trail until a paved road was completed little morá than an ox cart trail until a paved road was completed in 1955. Then oil and natural gas were discovered, making Bolivia more than self sufficient in petroleum (gasoline is just 40 eents a gallon in Santa Cruz). The oil and gas discoveries were lollowed by the boom in cotton Today, Santa Cruz is a major producer of oil, natural gas, cotton, sugar, nce, com, wheat and cattle. There is a petroleum refinery, 16 cotton gins, 5 edible oil extraction plants, 4 sugar milla and a burgeoning industnal park. There are plans for a cement mill, a can-making factory, a paper mill and a major textile plant.

The State Government of Santa Cruz has an average income of $20 million from oil royalties and has used this money wisely to $20 million from oil royalties and has used this money wisely to encourage the industries and services needed for full rapid development. Santa Cruz de la Sierra has grown more than five fold from 42,476 in 1950 to 255,568 in 1976, and is expected to fold from 42,476 in 1950 to 255,588 in 1976, and is expected to reach over 800,000 by the turn of the century.

This is still a frontier enty, yet according to the New York Times of 4 December 1974. "Unlike any other Bolivian city, Santa Cruz has a large and growing middle class..." Speaking of Santa Cruz, the Financial Times of London said: "The Crucenos are renowned for their independent mentality. The old world colonnaded streets echo to a cowboy philosophy of free enterprise and survival of the fittest. This is a place where people can get things done is something you hear at every turn." (8 February 1977). People who want to "get things done" have been coming to the State of Santa Cruz. First thera was the Japanese immigration from Okinawa, and today 30 miles north of Santa Cruz de la Siema is the prosperous agricultural colony centered around the new is the prosperous agricultural colony centered around the new Solivian town of Okinawa. Then in the 1960's the first large wave of English speaking Menonites arrived, mostly from Manitoba. Canada and later more from Paraguay and Mexico. This well known religious taming group, generally called Pennsylvania. Dutch in the United States, were seeking rich larming lands in a country where they could live in peace with a minimum of governmental interference in their community affairs. They came Santa Cruz, Bolivia

Today there are about 11,000 Menonites in various farming communities. They are virtually sell sufficient, raising their own fruits and vegetables, dairy products, poultry, beel and pork, plus large acreages devoted to cash crops, mostly soya beans, wheat

The Bolivian Government has indicated a willingness to accept European farmers from Rhodesia, Namibia and South Africa to settle in its unpopulated areas, and this new immigration is just beginning. While the foreign immigration has been going on, many industrious Boliviana from other areas have also settled in Santa Cruz.

SCHIPHOL AIRPORT EAST, P.O. Box 7766, Ameterdam, The Net

According to the Wall Street Journal: Bolivia's economy ahows strong alements of stability. (Feb. 8, 1977) "The inflation rata... is infinitesimal by Letin standards" (June 3, 1977) and "Consumer prices rose 4.6% from 1975 to 1976" (The Times, Dec. 13, 1977).

ENTERPRISING PEOPLE WANTED

Bolivia is looking for enterprising people to help develop its resources. There is a generous tax incentiva program for agnicultural enterprises and there are boundless new business opporbuniles in supplies and services to the burgeoning activity and population. Santa Cruz is well served by both State and foreign banks, including the First National Bank of Boston and the Bank of

The State of Santa Chiz is Bolivia's richest and hignest with a population of around 700,000 and a third of the country's area. The population of Santa Cruz is growing at twice the rate of the rest of Bolivia, which has a total population of 4.7 million Santa Cruz is estimated to have 65 million acres of useable land, but only 2 million are being farmed. The land is the real wealth of Santa Cruz, and this is where the opportunities are greatest

"As far as the eye can see, it's one vast area of potential farm land broken only by stands of viligin timber." Wall Street Journal, (3 June, 1976).

VIRGIN LANDS

The Anglo Bolivian Land and Cattle Company has conducted a

The Anglo Bolivian Land and Cattle Company has conducted a thorough search of the best undeveloped agricultural lands in Santa Cruz. We have screened hundreds of offers of undeveloped land and accepted only those with completely clear legal title, suitable soils, acceptable rainfail, and good access to the eny of Santa Cruz de la Sierra.

Thia is heavity forested land, classified by ecologists as "temperate dry to moist forest." There is a sufficient rainfalt of at least 40 inches most years, mainly from November through March Once cleared of forest and properly prepared, this land is ideal for cotton, soya beans, com, wheat, pineapples and peanuts. This is not jungle land or tropical rain forest, such as is being cleared in parts of the Amazon basin Ecologists and soil scientists have serious doubts about the advisability of clearing tropical rain forest for grazing and agricultura, but the temperate wooded lands of Santa Cruz are ideal for agricultural development.

LAND READY FOR WORKING

The undeveloped land can be immediately cleared for agri-culture, or just partially cleared, and in either case larmed individually or leased to a tenant. Alternatively the land can be lett in its natural state for recreational use and value growth A small site can be cleared for a house. Construction of a simple but adequate dwelling costs less than $5 per square foot.

ACCESS TO SUPPLYS & MARKETS All of the lands selected by Anglo Bolivian Land and Cattle Company are alongside or near major road projects or existing railroads and hava adequala road access.

LAND VALUES INCREASING

In the past, prime undeveloped land in Santa Cruz has appreciated between 15 to 20 percent annually. There is, of course, no guarantee that this rate of increase in value will continue. Developed land generally has a lar greater appreciation, and the major opportunity is in improving the undeveloped land.

major opportunity is in improving the undeveloped land. It must be remembered, though, that this is a frontier. The weather is generally quite mild, but it does sometimes get hot in the summer, and even down to the low forties (Fahrenheir) during the winter. There are insects that bite. The loads can occasionally be muddy during the rainy season and dusty during the dry Transportation is mostly by four wheel drive vehicles and trucks.

FERTILE SOIL - ABUNDANT GAME

But this land has its own rewards. The soil is lettile, and the lorest is populated by a wide vanety of game animals and birds, the collared and white lipped peccary, white tailed and brochet deer, tree turkeys, partridge, grouse and dove Most of the other species are protected under Bohvian law including the jaguar, puma, ocelor, margay, brown capuchins, grey fox, coati and pair rots. The bird life is prolific.

Olin To Pay 'Reparations' in Arms Case

By Robert Tomasson

NEW HAVEN, Conn., March 31 (NYT)—A U. S. judge ordered, the Olin Corp. yesterday to pay $510.000 for charity programs in A New Haven as "reparations" for the company's illegal arms sales to South Africa.

นี้ The unusual move surprised lawyers for both the company and the government.

"A financial fine is not enough," said 'District Judge Robert Zampano before be imposed the order and outlined a program of mandatory charity for the com-pany. "These violations could reflect on the credibility of the United States in the eyes of the world," he added. "As a result, every citizen of this country

The arms sales, which the coms pany did not deny, involved not only violations of federal statutes, but also a United Nations embargo and U.S. foreign policy. Jedge Zampano said.

Unusal Tactic

While fines levied against corporations or individuals in cases P won by the government normally P go to the U.S., Judge Zampano b adopted the unusual legal tactic Si of suspending sentence and placing the company on probation. A condition of the probation was that a charitable fund be established with funds equal to the maximum fine that could be imposed, which was $510,000.

On March 21, a week after a 21-count felony indictment was handed up by a federal grand jury g following an 18-month investiga-tion. Richard Blumenthal, the U.S. attorney for Connecticut who bad unsuccesfully sought to have the company plead guilty rather than no contest to the charges, made no recommendation to the judge on sentencing, following standard government practice.

Sales of $1.47 Billion

JUdge Zampano said that, with 2,500 employees in New Haven, including 1,700 in its Winchester arms division, Olin was the largest industrial employer in the city and had been bere more than 100 years. Sales last year for Olin, which has its corporate beadquarters in Stamford, totaled $1.47

The judge said that the corporation had a special obligation to make amends for its illegal acts "to the people of this community." He cited a probation report on Olin that said workers at the Winchester division were "very concerned" over the company's violation of the arms embargo to South Africa because of its apartheid policy of racial separation.

Bell Blames Nixon Era For FBI Break-Ins, Taps

WASHINGTON March 31 (NYT)—Auoraey General Griffin Bell said yesterday that although Justice Department investigators have found no evidence that anyone outside of the FBI authorized illegal break-ins and wiretaps in the early 1970s, he believes that the Nixon administration created an "atmosphere" that led to these activities.

"There are two ways you can do things," be said. "You can do things specifically by direct authorization, or you can have an atmosphere which exhorts people to get results."

The interview, an aide later said, took place March 22, at Mr. Nixon's home in San Clemente, Calif. Mr. Nixon was said to have had an attorney present, but it could not be learned whether he had been questioned under oath.

Mr. Bell said that it had been reported back to him that Mr. Nixon, like some of the former White House officials who had been questioned earlier, had said that he had not given such orders, or been aware that such activities were taking place.

Fit was not a presentation calculated to Frill a Third World audience. Some segents of the Third World, though not necess rily Venezuelans, prefer the United States admit an exploiter's guilt and start cough-g up "reparations." Others, more reason-ly, find the United States inattentive to ng-term self-interest. The Carter speech was, however, respectful of the aspirations, if not all of the anguisb of poor nations and of "middle elass" nations like Venezuela. They will judge the President and the United States by performance anyway. And the speech did not take Mr. Carter into realms of expectation in which be risks being undercut at home. That way lies only the shrinking of the public support for development that Mr. Carter should be working carefully to

By visiting two Latin American countries (Venezuela and Brazil) President Carter implicitly underlines the "special relationship" the United States bas with Latin America. It is a tie that, as Venezuelan writer Carlos Rangel observes, Latin Americans are as loathe to live with as they are to let go. In focusing on development, Mr. Carter at once responds to a Latin American preoccupation and reminds Latin Americans that, in Rangel's words, they are in North American eyes "failed co-participants in the great joint venture of settling the New World." That is how one explains the mixture of genuine warmth and priekly pride that Mr. Carter found in Venezuela.

Judicial Omnipotence

like other public officials, judges need to protected from angry losers. That's wby Supreme Court a hundred years ago esblished the doctrine that judges are imane from damage suits based on claims at their judicial acts have wrongly harmed meone. Judges would not feel free to make incipled or unpopular decisions in controrsial cases if losers could hound them with igation charging malice or corruption. But s Supreme Court this week carried the ctrine too far in the case of a young womwho was sterilized after what was, at best, kangaroo-court proceeding. Its decision ants unchecked power to judges to act cretly, conspiratorially and even illegally thout fear of being sued for damages; they ed only invoke the right of judicial trapp-

Consider the facts of this case. In 1971, an diana woman presented to a local judge a tition to have her 15-year-old daughter rilized. The mother stated under oath that e girl was "somewhat retarded" (although e had been promoted with her class in hool each year), that she associated with der men and had stayed overnight with em on several occasions, and that sterilizaon would be in her best interest "to prevent ifortunate circumstances." The judge aned the petition—without notifying the rl or appointing a lawyer to represent her holding a hearing or filing the petition in s court. He acted, what is more, without y specific grant of power under Indiana w. A week later, the girl was sterilized at e same time her appendix was removed. me years later, after she was married, she scovered what had been done and sued the dge, her mother, her mother's lawyer and e doctors for damages.

The Supreme Court ruled, 5 to 3, that the dge is immune from the suit. What he did was a "judicial act," the court says, because signing the petition is an act normally undertaken by a judge, and the parties were dealing with him as a judge. He would not be immune, the court said, only if he clearly lacked jurisdiction over the petition. He had jurisdiction, it explained, because Indiana law gave him broad, general power and did not sepcifically har him from handling such

For the reasons set out eloquently hy Justice Potter Stewart in dissent, we think the Supreme Court's logic is defective. It permits judges to abuse their power without fear of redress. Just recently, a judge in New York ordered the immediate arrest of a street vendor who had sold his bailiff a cup of coffee the judge did not like. That, under the Supreme Court's formula, was a "judicial act." But even that, as gross as it may have been, was quite different in character. The vendor, in theory at least, could get a judge of a higher court to set him free. The girl who was sterilized had no opportunity to appeal to a higher court and no way to change the permanent effect of the "judicial" order on her

As Justice Lewis Powell pointed out in his dissent, the Supreme Court simply ignored the basic reason why a nation can run the risk of granting its judges a certain immunity. It is that their acts as judges are, almost without exception, subject to review before they create permanent damage. A single judge, acting wrongfully or spitefully or illegally, can harm you temporarily in many ways. But he should never have unlimited power to make that harm permanent on his word alone. That blatant immunity is what the court has granted. It is a deeply disturbing step toward judicial omnipotence.

Carter Defends World Bank

By Graham Hovey

VV ing to grim warnings from Capitol Hill, the Carter administration bas mounted an intensive campaign to prevent Congress from crippling the World Bank and other financial institutions.

Recently for example, Vice-President Mondale met with five congressmen over breakfast at the White House to discuss the problem, and his staff let it be known that he was planning more strategy sessions with leaders of both bouses of Congress and both political parties. As part of a concurrent effort,

Sen. Jacob Javits, R-N.Y., bas called a meeting April 26 of members of four Senate committees les: with Robert McNamara, president of the World Bank. A Javits aide said the senator was concerned that the importance of for-eign aid was "not being explained coberently to the American people."

At the breakfast meeting, Mr. Mondale was told bluntly that an all-out administration drive was long overdue to shore up support for the international organizations by "educating" congressmen, especially newcomers, on the importance of international agencies for the United States.

"I told him that something equivalent to what they did on the Panama Canal treaties would be required," said Rep. Silvio Conte, R-Mass., a strong supporter of the financial institutions.

Funding

Since it began operations more than 30 years ago, the World Bank bas funded about 1,100 projects in nearly 100 countries at a total invested cost of $60 billion. The World Bank disposes of authorized capital of $34 billion, of which the current U.S.share is just under 25 per cent. The Inter-American Development Bank, the largest of the regional banks disposes of total au-thorized capital of $10.3 billion, of which the U.S.share is $3.6 billion. Since it started functioning in 1961, it has made 1,046 loans for a total of $12 billion.

Appropriations bills for the international institutions now are moving through the legislative mill, menaced as they were last year by proposed funding cuts and by amendments that would interfere critically with their lending authority.

Although the charters of the World Bank and regional devel-opment banks specify that loans can be made only on economic grounds, influential congressmen are trying to add in human-rights

Other forces in Congress are seeking to block any use of U.S.funds for loans to countries trying 10 increase their exports of products that might compete in world markets with U.S. products. Still others question the efficacy of the institutions in getting funds where they are needed. And there is a sizable congressional bloc, which is supported by the administration, that would like to see sharp cuts in the salaries and benefits offered by the institu-

All these attempted interventions coincide with growing doubts in Congress as to whether

WASHINGTON—Respondthe United States should be routing more than 40 per cent of its total foreign-aid budget through multilateral institutions not subject to close scrutiny by Congress.

The forces that threaten the future of the international institutions, or at least effective U.S. participation in them, thus constitute an unusual alliance of human-rights liberals, ultraconservatives, protectionists and disillusioned internationalists.

In a last-ditch effort to head off crippling amendments last year, President Carter promised to instruct United States representatives at the international banks to vote against loans in two categor-

 To Vietnam, Loas, Cambodia, Cuba, Angola, Mozambique and Uganda, all countries for which the House had voted earlier to bar any use of U.S. funds. • For the production of sugar, palm oil and citrus fruits where these would be for export "and could injure producers in the United States. Backers of the international insututions were dismayed.

Argued

They argued that the votes and behavior of the U.S. delegates, as ordered by the President, would politicize and undermine the international institutions as surely as the congressional amendments would bave done.

In particular, Rep. Conte said that the promised votes against loans for three commodities, in effect, invited every member with "a commodity problem" to tack on an amendment the next time around.

An added trouble this year is that the United States is $835 million in arrears on pledged contri-butions to the World Bank (formerly known as the International Bank for Reconstruction and Development), the Inter-American Development Bank and the Asian Development Bank, as a result of congressional cuts in the two previous years.

Rather than ask for a supplemental appropriation to wipe out these deficits, the administration decided to add the $835 million to its regular budget request for fis-cal 1979.

Thus, the 1979 request was for $3.5 billion, including the $1.4 billion of callable capital, or funds that that will not be spent unless one of the international banks should sustain its first default ever on a loan.

Critics

Critics cite the $3.5 billion as representing increases of 82 per cent over fiscal 1978 and 200 percent over fiscal 1977.

They are taking aim particular-ly at the request of $1.5 billion for the International Development Association (IDA), the World Bank's so-called soft-loan window, where interest-free, long-term credits are designed to aid development in the poorest coun-

The request for the IDA is a tempting target because it is swollen by an overlap and by the refusal of Congress last year to vote on appropriation it bad specifically authorized in 1977.

So the administration is asking $750 million for the IDA's fourth replenishment of funds and $800. million more for part of its fifth replenishment.

Donors

All of the 24 other donor countries have already completed their contributions to the $4.5 billion fourth replenishment, of which the total U.S. share was about one-third. But the other 26 donors for the $7.6 billion fifth replenishment have indicated they will hold back their deliveries of funds United States will fulfill its $2.4 billion pledge.

If Congress should refuse to complete the fourth replenishment contribution, the Treasury Department says that by June the United States would be in default on "a legally binding international obligation."

Officials say the effect of an American default would be disastrous for the poor countries. "I frankly don't think there is a chance" of getting the fourth replenishment money for the 1DA Congress this year.

In Lebanon Crisis

UN's Quiet Service

By James Reston

The United Nations seems to be everybody's favorite whipping-boy these days, but in the latest Lebanon crisis, it was the UN, as usual, that had to organize the peace-keeping troops.

It is only at times like these that the UN is recognized, not much hut some, as a useful instrument in world affairs. When the major nations have the will to use it in emergencies, as they did after Israel's counter-invasion of the Lebanon, the UN can act with admirable dispatch. It is "useless" only when the members of the Security Council decide not to use

Secretary-General Waldheim is trying to expand its role now in two different ways. He is con-eerned about the stalemate in the bilateral negotiations on the Middle East, and is hoping that some kind of preliminary or exploratory consultations can begin here to keep the Middle East talks going. And he is worried that the decline in U.S.-Soviet relations may impede progress at the UN disar-mament conference here in May.

Arms Parley

Accordingly, be is trying to per-suade President Carter and Presi-dent Brezhnev of the Soviet Un-ion to attend the disarmament conference, and to use this occasion for a private discussion of their differences. They have agreed in principle to meet after they have agreed on a (second strategic arms limitation treaty. but Waldheim fears that they will not reach an agreement unless they meet ahead of time and remove the suspicions that are now hampering the negotiations on both sides.

President Carter has indicated that he will address the disarmament conference. President Valery Giscard d'Estaing of France in showing new interest in the United Nations. He not only agreed to put French troops into the peace-keeping force in the Lebanon (without being asked to do so), but will come here for the disarmament conference with mafor new proposals. This will be the first time a French president has addressed the General Assembly.

Thus, Secretary General Waldheim is hoping that this conference will bring other major world leaders here for a public presentation of their arms proposals, and perhaps more important, for an informal series of discussions on their other differences in the Mid-dle East and Africa.

Hampered

So far, be has received little encouragement from Brezhnev, and even the process of discussion has been hampered by the recent disappearance of the Soviet Foreign until they can be assured that the Minister, Andrei Gromyko, who, like Brezhnev, is said to be in poor health.

Waldheim is being told by So-viet officials — and has been told personally by Brezhnev — that Moscow simply does not under-stand President Carter's attitude toward the Soviet Union. And the United States is telling him precisely the same thing about its faipure to understand what Moscow is doing, particularly in Angola, Ethiopia and elsewhere in Africa.

Various private efforts have been made on both sides to per-

U.S. Law System

It is always beartening to ob-serve the spirit of the U.S. charac-ter when it inquires after the tragassassination of President John Kennedy. Many of us bope that such a terrible fact of history will not rest easily, and that htose who might bave been involved, but, for some reason or other, were not discovered will be found out, no matter who they be.

But one must ask of the U.S.

public a serious question. Does it believe, in light of the Justice Department's recent ill performance over Watergate prosecutions and convictions, in light of the full flaunting of the law with regard to full prosecutions in the My Lai massacre (as sordid an event that military history could guilty were, by design or by hap-penstance, members of the CIA, or any other secret agency of the federal government?

It should be observed that U.S. common law bas been under a unified attack not only from orga-nized crime in the United States. but, however paradoxical this is to assert, by the secret service agencies of the U.S. government itself. Subornation, on numerous occasions, has not been punished as a felony in the United States: government officials have been actively encouraged to plead to lesser offence, at the instigation or cooperation of the Justice Department itself. Felonies, which by any other would be felonies, bave been overlooked if they have been committed in the line of duty (as were FBI robbenies). What one must ask is: How long can a criminal law system tolerate a Justice Department, as well as agencies of government, which seek to undermine the rule and sanctions of the criminal law in the pursuit of justice and in the punishment of felons? These questions cloud whatever answer can be given to those who may have had some part in President Kennedy's death, and, at the same, may bave been agents in the employ of the American government. One asks: Who guards the

Yet, all along, the precise gestures of these gawky figures retain a kind of majesty. The greatoess of the idea survived in a country far removed from the idea's home, despite any material failures.

This comes across strikingly in the structure itself, which is shown at the exhibition in two beautiful aerial views that could e monument that has been dis- oot have been taken a few years antied so that its crumbling ago when the pedestal was not

> A low 123-meter-square hase, supports five receding platforms which give it the appearance of a pyramid. Then the square gives way to the circle. Three circular platforms also of gradually diminishing size, each one lined by bell-shaped structures encasing seated Buddhas, lead up to the ultimate platform on which there stands one single hell-shaped structure. Even without knowing what it all means, one is aware of the compelling logic of a concept made a monument.

On the fifth platform other texts are illustrated. This induced a scholar to cootend that the diversity of the texts used points to a multiplicity of projects executed at widely separated periods—an assumptioo that seems farfetched in view of the rigorous consistency of the overall design.

The bell-shaped structures on the circular platforms that look like stupas originally mausoleums erected over relics of the Lord Buddha-have been the subject of further dehates. Buddhists themselves have been besitant concerning these mysteries. And to them Borobudur is much more than a subject of scholarly interest. It still is a major pilgrimage center.

The answer that comes closest to a solution may have just been given by a Tibetan dignitary. Dvags-po Rimpoche, who lives in the West. THEATER IN LONDON

Like Uriah Heep on Speed

By John Walker

L ONDON, March 31 (IHT)—
It is still the off-season for British musicals. The latest, "The Travelling Music Show" at Her Majesty's, is subtitled "A Sort of Songbook," and that, indeed, is what it turns out to be: sort nf songs, sort of composed by Leslie Bricusse and Anthony Newley.

That the evening is a sort of a success is entirely due to the performance of its star, Bruce Forsyth, who is bardly off the stage for two-and-a-half hours. But it is entirely a triumph of personality, hard work and professinnalism nver material.

The score consists mainly of nld songs written by Bricusse and Newley, either separately nr together, for previous musicals, such as "Stop the Wnrld, I Want to Get Off," "The Good Old, Bad Old Days" and "Dr. Dolittle."

They are performed within a framework that is a variation of the usual Bricusse-Newley book, the sentimentalized story of a little chap battling against the odds and winning. Io this case Fred Limelight is a struggling musichall performer making his last attempt at stardnm hy staging a sbow featuring the talents of himself and his family.

Backstage Hysteria

On npening night, he finds that one of the cast is missing and the action switches from frantic bysteria backstage and in the wings tn polished and calm performances nn stage.

That the snngs can be wrenched out of their original musical cootexts and still work as well, nr as badly, as ever suggests their strengths and weaknesses.
"If I Ruled the World," a song originally sung by Pickwick in a bad Dickensian musical, is oow performed by a young girl, Katie

It loses nothing, because it never was anything more than a ballad aimed at the contemporary hit parade. Most of them are staged, by Burt Shevelove, amid a wealth of comic business, which suggests an understandable lack of confidence in their ability to bold an audience's interest for long. But even this brightness and brasbness becomes hard to take.

"Gonna Build a Mountain" to be "The Makropoulos Case" by an sung by a bus conductor, for ensemble from the Prague Nainstance, although, thanks to tinnal Theater, and Alexander Derek Griffith's performance, it Tcberepnio (1899-1977) will be is one of the sbow's more enjoy- bonored in a concert including able moments.

JEW YORK. March 31 (IHT)—This is how The New York Times critics rate new plays and films:

Plays

"Native Son," adapted from Richard Wright's novel. "lacks the hreadth and even the atmospheric detail of the original," Mel Gussow says. However. "there is no denying that this is still an incendiary work of theater." The director. Dick Gaffield, has been "generally furtunate in his choice of cast; this is particularly true in the case of Bo Rucker" as Bigger Thomas. Gussow says that "if the book has not been fully realized in the play, oeither have Gasfield's intentions been fully realized in this production."

"Valpone" is a "sprightly animated versinn of Ben Jonson's mordant comedy." Thomas Lask says. "It is somewhat stripped down and quite unpretentious. Coral C. Pntter is Valpone in this production. which Lask "can't imagine anynne coming away fram disappointed." He says: The play is ...remarkably free of business. Thus, the players are thrown back on Jonson's pliant verse, take their cues from it and mold their actinns around it."

Films

"The Other Side of the Mountain, Part II," is director Larry Peerce's segual to the 1975 film of the same name about a championship woman skier whn had been paralyzed in a downhill accident. "The problem with Part 11." according to Vincent Canby. is "that there are no problems. The ones that screenwriter Douglas Day Stewari has attempted to dramatize are lugubriously unbelievable." Jill Kinmont played by Marilyn Hassett, falls in love with and eventually marnes a long-distance truck driver played by Timothy Bottoms. The film "is really a 30 minute postscript to the original story blown up to feature length by artificial plot problems..."

Smaller Firms Bow To Carter Pressure

WASHINGTON, March 31 (UPI)—Following National Steel Corp.'s lead, Inland Steel Co. and Republic Steel bowed today to Carter admioistration pressure and uodercut price increases an-nounced earlier this week by two major steelmakers.

However, most other steel companies held off joining the new round of price increases until U.S. Steel Corp. decides whether to stick by its $10.50-a-ton increase or roll it back about balfway.

The nation's largest producer announced the hike Wednesday to offset higher coal costs arising from settlement of the recent miners' strike. But yesterday, it was undercut by National Steel Corp., which raised its prices by $5.50 a ton. National, the third largest U.S. producer, said a bigger in-crease was justified, but it settled for less because it wanted to help fight inflation. President Carter yesterday termed the $10.50-a-ton hike "excessive." U.S. Steel President David Ro-derick said prior to the National Steel announcement that if Mr. Carter "asks us to roll back we would certainly listen to the President." But Mr. Roderick added that market forces determine pricthe parent New York bank. Vin- es and "we haven't announced a price increase to roll it back."

McDermott, B&W Merger Approved

Sbareholders of J. Ray McDermott & Co., an offshore oil operations firm, have voted to acquire Babcock & Wilcox, a major manufacturer of industrial boilers and energy systems, in a stock ex-change deal valued at $387.5 million. Each share of B&W common stock will be converted into shares of McDermott preferred. To cover the acquisition, McDermott created 25 million shares of preferred stock. In addition, the company will boost the present 36 million shares of commoo stock to 60 million shares of commoo stock to 60 million shares. The merger ends a year-long bidding war for B&W between McDermott and United Technologies, a larger conglomerate based in Hartford, Conn. United originally bid $42 a share for the stock finally purchased by McDermott for $62.50 a share. McDermott will exchange one share of its $2.20 convertible cumulative preferred stock and one share of its $2.60 perfected stock for each B&W share McDermott perferred stock for each B&W share McDermott does not already own. The perferred shares are valued at about $62.50, the same as that McDermott paid in cash under its 1977 tender offer.

BOC subsequently sought—and was refused— Airco's blessing for a further $43-a-share offer for the remaining Airco shares. Although it had approved in advance BOC's offer for the 1.8 million shares, Airco later went to court to charge that the offer was part of a scheme by BOC to acquire Airco's shares outstanding "at a low and unfair

Dollfus Mieg Expects Loss

Dollfus Mieg, a major French textile group, says it will post a loss of 30-to-35 million French francs for 1977 compared with a loss of 19.7 million francs in 1976. The board will probably suggest passing the 1977 dividend payout against three francs a share, the company says, but sales since the beginning of year conform to expectations, and that its results in 1978 will likely show an improvement on last year.

exchange-rate principles.

By Hobart Rowen WASHINGTON, March 31 (WP)-A totally revamped international mooetary system will go ioto effect tomorrow, when ratification of an amendment overhauling the International Mooetary Fund's charter will be completed, the IMF announced yesterday.

The change in rules legalizes flexible exchange rates and allo-cates to the IMF considerable power for "surveillance" of currency fluctations. It also marks the legal end of the Bretton Woods system that provided for fixed-exchange rates and tied the dollar to gold.

Essentials of the new system were agreed upon by the IMF's Interim Committee in Jamaica in January 1976, and the rules governing surveillance were announced last year.

the IMF's 34-year history, does not provide the complete reform that some boped to accomplish when the Bretton Woods system began its collapse oo Aug. 15, 1971—the date President Nixon abandooed the convertibility of the dollar into gold. The amendment, now ratified by the required 60 percent of members with 80 percent of vot-ing power, is based on legal acceptance of the floating rates that have developed since then. Members can set up any exchange system they choose but may not maintain a value for their currencies in terms of gold. Among other significant potential developments are a possible expansion in the use of special drawing rights (SDRs)—the principal reserve asset of the IMF.

Members can now exchange or transfer SDRs freely, and the IMF may authorize other international institutions, such as the World Bank, to use them. The IMF also gains the power to invest its surplus funds, cur-rently about 700 million SDR, in interest-bearing securities.

Officials said the increased member quotas established by the Sixth General Review would go into effect within 30 days, enlarging the 1MF's resources to 39 billion SDR from 29.2 billion.

PARIS, March 31 (AP-DJ)-Fi nancial aid from East European countries to developing nations are relatively small and declining and their terms are hardering, according to a study by the Organization for Economic Cooperation and Development.

The study, made in December and released yesterday, covers Bulgaria. Crashoplosukin Est.

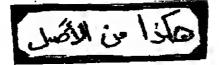

and released vesterday, covers Bulgaria. Czechoslovakia, East Germany, Hungary, Poland and Romania.

Their total net disbursements including trade credits and non-concessional loans (excluding aid to Cuba and Vintnam) is estimated to have averaged $110 million annually over the period 1970-1976. This represents on average 0.04 percent of gross national product of the countries involved.

(Capital flows to developing nations from the 18-member nations of the OECD's Development Assistance Committee totalled $40.6 billion in 1976, up from $39.9 billion in 1975.)

THE YOUNG HAMILTON By James Thomas Flexner. Little Brown. Illustrated. 497 pp. $15.00.

47, after the famous duel with Aaron Burr. James Thomas Flexner covers his first 26 years, from the West Indian childhood to the end of the American Revolution. It isn't clear wbether a secand volume is intended, although Flexner's record — four volumes on George Washington, three volumes on the history of American painting, etc. — suggests that one is inevitable. If nothing else, Flexner will want to disprove Vernon Parrington's contention that Hamilton was "the directing mind" of Washington's two administrations. While Flexner is around, nobody is going to take anything away from George Washington. The heart sinks on being told that "The Young Hamilton" is a "psychological biography." Surely we do not need any more bad dreams and toilet training; smite the rock of childhood, and Oedipal irresolutions gush forth. But Flexner is in no mood for survivor-guilt or symbolic particides. He never has been. Just the facts. please. As usual, he is meticulous and feisty. He is always burrowing in, wary and shrewd, with an eye for the telling document. He brooks no nonsense. And he covers new ground.

Or old new ground: the West Indies, especially St. Croix, where Hamilton grew up miserable. We bave been told by others that the childhood was not so miserable, even if Hamilton's father, who was not married to bis and the solution of the was not married to his mother, deserted the family. Flexner demonstrates otherwise. Home life was squalid. Hamilton and his older brother slept on the floor. They were, in a small town, officially branded "obscene children." The mother seems to have dispensed with the father when she felt she could live off the leavings of rich relatives. She died when Hamilton was 11; be was in bed with her at the time, himself feverish, and left destitute except for his considerable wits. Hamilton's father was the di- The New York Times.

According to Daniel Webster, "He smote the love for his father, and that all his love for his father, and that all his life he was afflicted with a romantic dream of aristocracy, of a van-ished honor, his father's only leg-

The grudge and the dream explain a great deal: his prickliness at real or imagined slights, result-ing in everything from the remov-al of Congress from Philadelphia to his death by duel; the streak of cruelty in his letter to Elizabeth Schuyler (women were by nature betrayers); his distrust of individuals (the "great beast" of the peo-ple) and belief in a Hobbesian-Leviathan state; his personal hon-esty (unto bankruptcy) versus his indifference to corruption in others (he expected it); his loathing of the French Revolution; his tepidness on emancipation; his passion for devising strong institu-tions, along with his irrational outbursts, nervous collapses, glory-hounding and contempt for conventional politics — as if to undo his own designs, even the

He was brilliant, although Flexner makes sure we know he bad a lot of belp. He understood credit, and the need for industrialization, and capitalism, and imperialism. Conservatives will be unhappy to bear that be gave us the idea of a national debt. If, almost alone among the founding fathers, he opposed the notion so 18th century, so American — of a "minimal" state, well, he probably had the 20th-century in mind. Since we feel bad about the 20th century, he looks dangerous. "The great mind," says Flexner, "so precocious at the start, never Washington, Schuyler) and the substitute brothers (Laurens and Lafayette), did not Hamilton subconsciously think of the sovereign state as the happy family and the president as the no-looger-missing father? Maybe — unlike Adams, who knew history, and Jefferson, who knew politics - Hamilton was never socialized.

Star at 30, Legend at 40, Gordie Howe Turns 50 By Parton Keese

NEW YORK, March 31 (NYT)—Gordie Howe is 50 years young today. So what? Well, do you know any other 50-year-old who is competing in the World Hockey Association, leading his team (the New England Whalers) in scoring among the top five all-time WHA point leaders, playing alongside two sons, still the all-time National Hockey League champion in goals, assists, points champion in goals, assists, points and games played, has had the WHA's Most Valuable Player trophy named after him, is in the Hall of Fame and is about to become a grandfather?

Gordie Howe is still amazing people. A living legend at 30 and again at 40. Howe has become hockey's $6-million man at 50.
"I'm nothing special," he submits.
"I'll just retire at 65 like every-

Last night, the displanted Whalers capped a three-day cele-bration of Howe's birthday by holding a "roast," attended by teammates, celebrities, lifelong friends and 700 fans who paid $70 for a pair of tickets. The night before in Springfield Civic Arena, where the Whalers have played their home games since the roof collapsed this year at Hartford's Civic Arena, Howe was showered with gifts, including a 460-pound cake, in a pre-game ceremony. Then, in typical fashion, Howe. led the Whalers to a 6-1 victory over the Cincinnati Stingers, tallying his 91st point of the season and the 2,269th of his carcer. That was Howe's 2,252nd game in the big leagues. Despite a 30season career (he missed two years when he "retired" in 1971) where he was named the Most Valuable Player in the NHL six times and a WHA All Star twice, Howe stood before an admiring crowd, brushed away tears and

"I want to revise my thinking on my greatest moment in hockcy. It's tonight."

Joining Howe for the historic occasion were a host of friends-Al Kaline, who broke into baseball with the Detroit Tigers the same year Howe joined the Detroit Redwings; Tommy Ivan, his first professional coach; Ted Lindsay, who with Howe and Sid Abel, formed the Detroit Red Wings famous production line; Bill Gadsby, o Red Wing ream-mate, and Eddie Shore, both Hall of Fame defensemeo; Fred (Cyclone) Taylor, who at 94 is considered the oldest living former professional hockey player, and others. They brought back memories and added praise.

"He was not only the greatest hockey player I've ever seen," said Gadsby, "but also the greatest athlete."

Gordie rewrote the game," said Shore, "from his wrist shot to his whole pattern of play." Almost from the day he joined Detroit, Howe impressed every-ooe with his stickhandling. One day, Abel, the Red Wings' captain, confronted the rookie, saying, "I don't mind this great stickhandling of yours, but do you have to stickhandle around the same player three times?"

When Howe scored his 1,000th goàl earlier this season (he now has 1,028), he became the first player in history to reach that pla-teau. (Bobby Hull did it a few weeks ago.) For that, Howe received a gold puck. Thesday night he received a gold hockey stick from the Whalers to match the puck. Gordie Howe did not start with gold, however. "As a kid," he recalled, "all I owned were skates and a stick. I stuck magazines in my socks for shin pads. We played with tennis balls instead of a puck."

The New York Rangers let

Howe get away from them when Howe was 15 and appearing for a tryout. Shy, naive and inexperienced, Howe was heckled unmercifully by the Ranger veterans. Homesick as well, he finally quit the Ranger training camp and went home to be "discovered" shortly after by the Red Wings.

While winning six scoring championships and playing in 21 NHL All Star games, Howe be-came an intimidating player. Of-ten termed "ooe of the dirtiest players in the league," the 6-foot, 200-pound Howe elbowed, grabbed, mauled and butted hapless opposents, while oever backing off from a rival policeman or Howe lost his front teeth in his first year in the NHL and then went on to break three ribs, several toes, a collarbone and a wrist. He has had three knee operations, one elbow operation and suffered double vision from a concussion for three months.

His latest favorite pastime understandably, is taking whirl pool baths. His least favorite is answering questions on when he

More Dividends

Other Delvecchio moves that are paying dividends for Lindsay and Kromm are the signing of Larson from the University of Minnesota in 1976 after the Western Collegiate Hockey Associa-tion suspended him for an altercation with another player, ob-taining defenseman Greg Johy from Washington for Bryan Wat-son and trading Bill Hogaboam to Minnesota for Dennis Hextall.

Several scouts were the first to go after Lindsay took one look at the results of their work skating in Detroit uniforms.

He announced that anyone who wanted a shot would get it in training camp. Then he started signing rejects and any hockey player who could write his name. Goalic Ron Low was signed as a free agent from Washington and Walt McKechnie, the club's leading scorer with 59 points, dispatched to the Capitols as compensation. Lindsay didn't like McKechnie's style.

He signed wingers Rick Bowness and Larry Wright just before training camp. Former former Red Wing Thommie Bergman signed late in the season after the defenseman bought up his contract from Winnipeg, which had let defenseman Perry Miller go to Detroit before the season.

Left wing Paul Woods was plucked from the Montreal system in the intra-league draft while the amateur draft produced center Dale McCourt.

sent high-scoring but lazy Michel Bergeron to New York for Andre St. Laurent, who wasn't playing much for the Islanders but has scored 30 goals for Detroit. Two defenseman who Lindsay signed but hadn't played a game for Detroit, Steve Durbano and Dave Hanson, were dispatched to Birmingham of the WHA for Vaclav Nedomansky and Tim Sheehy Nedomansky is adjusting to the NHL but Sheehy oever scored a point and was let go.

Other Mistakes Dennis Hull was another Lindsay acquisition who didn't set the world on fire. The aging left wing, who had retired at Chicago's insistence, was obtained for a draft choice but went 44 games without a goal with Detroit.

A lot of Detroit's players have been winners before, either in the minors, college or oo other teams, and Kromm believes this plus ability plus hard work plus enthusiasm have all combined to turn the Red Wings around.

Ali's Sucker Appeal Is All That Is Left

By Red Smith

MIAMI. March 31, (NYT)—Muhammad Ali looked all washed up on the tube. To be sure, he didn't appear on the tube and he wasn't lutking behind the slot machines when Larry Holmes did a jnb on Earnie Shavers in Las Vegas the other day. Just the same, the performance served to indict Ali as a fighter, in absentia. indict Ali as a fighter, in absentia.

Holmes went around Shavers, as they used to say, like a cooper around a barrei. Watching him pitch something close to a shutout, it was impossible to ignore the contrast between this romp and the ordeal Ah suffered at the slow hands of Shavers just a few months earlier. Holmes showed Shavers up for what he has always been—a big, lubberly plodder with no lateral movement and a roundhouse swing that is his sin-gle weapon. In 12 rounds, Shaver may have landed three or four clean shots to the head, at most. ret only last September these same crude punches eaught Ali again and again and Shavers actu-ally took a lead on points against the most skillful boxer that ever lived. (That's Ali's own estimate and it does not necessarily reflect the views of this writer.) All was on the verge of obsolescence that night in Madison Square Garden when he dredged up strength for a 30-second closing rally that won the judges over. Now, as Shaver floundered in fuule pursuit of Holmes, compari-sons were inevitable. This benehed whale almost knocked Ali out and did outpoint him in the judgment of some witnesses. That should put to rest any no-tico that it was a fluke or an upset when Ali lost to Leon Spinks in his next start. It should give the clientele a line on what to expect from Ali in the future. Justification

According to Bob Arum, the boy promoter, a country in Africa wants an Ali-Spioks tematch. Africa may oot be far enough away.

Arum says that there has been beavy pressure for a return bout from all over the world. MARY BLUME

The big coup will be a book on Prince Charles's wedding, which the company is working full speed on despite the prince's lack of fiancee.

Debrett's Takes On a Common Touch

ONDON (IHT)-Kind hearts are more than coronets: that we have of course always known. But it is finally possible to state how much more. When Debrett's, the 208-year-old English company, published only its Baronetage and Peerage, company earnings were only £18 a day. Now that the company has started tracing the lineage of common folk and, upon request, supplying them with suitable-for-framing family trees, request, supplying them with suitable-for-training family trees, daily earnings are up to £2,500.

The change, which has happened in less than two years, was led by Harold Brooks-Baker, a subtly tailored native of Maryland and London resident who is managing director of Debrett's Peerage Limited. Mr. Brooks-Baker had wanted to take over the sinking company before it foundered completely the subtle the service of Petrick Montague. and while he could still enjoy the services of Patrick Montague-Smith, the editor of the Barooetage and Peerage, who has been with the firm since the days of the Plantagenets.

Mr. Montague-Smith's new edition of Debrett's will be out next year at a cost to the company of more than £100,000. To offset that, the company is expanding its ancestry research line ("Your ancestry traced by Debrett's Peerage") and is lucratively publishing books with what Mr. Brooks-Baker describes as an imperial, royal or noble side. These include a guide to the recent Faberge show at the Victoria and Albert, "The Big Shots," a bloodcurdling account of Edwardian shooting parties with Edward VII on the cover, and "Debrett's Correct Form," which tells one how to address such difficult personages as the Widow of Ooe Who Would Have Succeeded to a Peerage Had

"This is a book on protocol, which is very different from etiquette," Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "It's very difficult for people to know bow to address the second son of a second son. Even people who live io the milieu are exaggerating when they say they understand everything."

The company is also updating Nancy Mitford's "Noblesse Oblige," and a director of Debrett's, Sir Iain Moocreiffe of that Ilk, whose eccentricities are ootable even in his native

Scotland, is writing a book on the English gentleman. The big coup will be a book on Prince Charles's wedding. which the company is working on full speed despite the prince's lack of fiancee. "The first part, the history of his life, can be dooe well in advance." Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "Our three writers will work with two genealogists oo the fiancee's family. The chances of our being the first book on the most important wedding of the century are pretty good."

Such go-getting deserves an accolade, especially as an earlier bit of trumpeting fell flat. To publicize its ancestry research branch, Debrett's traced the genealogy of President Carter. "Many people thought it was just a publicity gimmick," Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "We were trying to show that an American whose family had not been rich and famous could have his family traced."

Carter's waning popularity made general interest in his background rather slight, except among the Carters of Virginia, who were hopping mad.

"The average attitude I found in Virginia was we're related to Carter—as indeed most Virginians are—but he's not related to us. We don't speak the same language, we don't wear the same clothes, we're Anglicans, he's a Baptist.

"My feeling," says Mr. Brooks-Baker severely, "is that every European family—we're speaking of the great European families—has accepted that he has relations that are humble. If the Queen can accept that she has relations named Smith or Jones. then I would suggest that a Carter of Virginia cao do the Unstung by the Carter backfire. Debreit's is planning to use John Washington, a descendant of George, to promote its new roots-style tours. "We'll take him to various places where his ancestors lived. We'll also take him to Germany where he has relations. There are very few Americans who realize there are any Washingtons left. He lives modestly but can use Mount

Those who want to take ancestry tours must first give Debrett's six months' notice, during which their genealogies will be traced. A staff genealogist will meet them upon their arrival and point them toward the right house or churchyard. "It's as expensive as you wish to make it." Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "You can bicycle and camp out, or stay in a beautiful castle."

These days Debrett's likes to emphasize the common touch. It is easier and cheaper, Mr. Brooks-Baker says, to trace a Greek-American family who emigrated only 40 years ago than a Carter who has been in the United States for three centuries. The company has offices throughout Europe, contacts with all the Communist countries save Albania and an admiration for the records kept by Sephardic Jews. In addition. Sir Iain Moncreiffe is an expert oo Japanese genealogy.

"We would like to think that eventually we could do the world with the exception of Africa where, outside of North Africa, written records do not exist," Mr. Brooks-Baker says.

Debrett's is also planning to expand its travel division to recreate the Grand Tour or to allow parties to follow their heros' traces. Mr. Brooks-Baker himself has done a Ludwig of Bavaria tour and has followed the footsteps of several Bourboo-Parmes. "Tallyerand is one of my favorites. I did a Tallyerand trip," he says.

Debrett's may be flourishing thanks to all the new blood. but the company had another publicity setback when it offered to trace Alex Haley's Irish roots. 'He hasn't even given a reply," Mr. Brooks-Baker says. "English genealogists think he did an admirable job, but I think he must also accept that he is part white and pay attention to that part of his ancestry. The name of the family in Ireland is Jackson. They produced Stonewall Jackson.

'In genealogy you don't have the right to be selective." Mr. Brooks-Baker says firmly. "Haley is guilty of the same thing as the Virginians. That's scholastically dishonest and, I think, personally rather boring.

John Wayne Enters PEOPLE: A Boston Hospital

The switchboard at Massachu-setts General Hospital in Bosion was jammed with calls from fans of John Wayne, who is undergo-ing tests for o reported breathing problem, but hospital officials said the actor asked that no information about his condition be given out. "He's heing examined," said hospital spokesman Chris Bullock, "it's not related to cancer. That's all we can say." Wayne, 70, survived a bout with cancer that cost him a lung in 1964. A few days ago Wayne said that he was not being treated for cancer. "No, pneumonia." he said. "Hell, I got rid of that cancer 14 years ago." Meanwhile, a Boston radio station said that Wayne would undergo open heart surgery.

Norwegian explorer Thor Heyerdahl, who wants to prove that ancient Sumerians traveled widely on primitive boats, has arrived in Djibouti aboard his marsh-weed eraft. Heyerdahl and his international crew arrived in this port on the Gulf of Aden after a journey across the Indian Ocean on the Tigris, a crude vessel patterned after Sumerian vessels. They left Karachi oo Feb. 26. The explorer is expected to stay for about a week. He and the other adventurers set out four months ago from the confluence of the Tigris and Euphrates rivers in Iraq. A Santa Ana, Calif., foundation is planning to buy Richard Nixon's hirthplace for $125,000 and wants to preserve it as a his-torical site. The small wooden frame home is owned by the Yorba Linda School District, according to Elton Partridge, deputy district superintendent. It sits on a 1.3-acre lot valued at more than $100,000. The school district bought the area as part of an eight-acre parcel about 50 years ago and huilt a school on part of the land, Partridge said. There had been plans to sell the Nixon binhplace earlier, but after the Watergate scandal huyer interest waned, he said. However, the Nixon Birthplace Foundation "approached us and said that no matter what had happened, he [Nixon] was still the 37th president of the United States and he was from Yorba Linda," Partridge said.

The sale of the home to the local foundation was officially approved by the Orange County Board of Supervisors.
